This warrant for John Bunyan's arrest was issued in 1674, and is responsible for Bunyan's second, albeit brief, incarceration in 1675. It was during this second incarceration that he wrote "The Pilgrim's Progress". "Truly, The wrath of man shall praise Thee: the remainder of wrath shalt Thou restrain." ~ Psalm 76:10 ~

At the time, (1674), John Bunyan was forty-six years old.

This document bears the signature of thirteen magistrates. One of them is Foster, a fierce enemy of John Bunyan. At this time, Foster was Chancellor of the Bishop of Lincoln, the Diocesan, and Commissary of the Court of the Archdeacon of Bedford. Of the other magistrates, Sir John Napier, Sir William Beecher and Sir George Blundell, were included in the bench when John Bunyan was first sentenced in 1661.
